Ethnic Studies, CIA Discussed at Faculty Legislature Meeting

By Adam Moss
Campus Editor

Support for an ethnic studies requirement and criticism of a racial harassment policy were among the views expressed by faculty members in attendance at Thursday afternoon's Academic Senate meeting.

The first senate meeting of the year began with Chancellor Barbara Uehling addressing the academic body, outlining her goals for the university. She first described her intent to restructure the university administration and then addressed the development of a "mission statement," which would provide the university with "a good feeling for what this campus is and should be."

After explaining her next goal — to produce an academic plan and subsequent physical plan for the campus — Uehling said her final goal "has to do with minority participation on this campus. We need to make it a very high priority." This fourth goal may be "one of the most difficult to achieve, because it may be the most difficult to define," Uehling said.

"It isn't just a matter of going out and bringing students here," she said. "It isn't just a matter of another committee taking on one more task."

"I think making this campus hospitable to minorities is the responsibility of each and every person," she added.

Senate members later viewed "To Be a Black Student at UCSB," a video that consists of black students describing racism they have experienced at UCSB. Lecturer Elliot Butler-Evans believes the video is mild and compared it to "The Cosby Show" in its ability to increase racial sensitivity. "There is nothing in this film that's new," he said.

"As a matter of fact, a great deal of this is rather mild, compared to what was going on when I came here in 1969. I imagine that I should be impressed by this product, but I'm not at all convinced that this necessarily will create any type of change on this campus," he said.

Several senate members, however, lauded the video. Senate Chair A.E. Keir Nash cited the low number of black students on campus as a primary reason for a lack of understanding of minorities.

"There is really not enough black students below critical mass and ... an immediate (decision) has to be made in terms of the admissions," Nash said.

Next, the senate discussed progress of the development of a systemwide ethnic studies requirement. An ethnicity task force of the Committee on Educational Policy and Academic Planning is nearly unanimous in supporting an ethnic studies general education requirement, said Professor Richard Watts, a CEPAP member. "There seems to

32-year Art Professor Dies of Heart Attack at 63

Robert C. Thomas, a professor of art studio at UCSB for more than 32 years, passed away last Friday from a heart attack suffered while playing raquetball.

Born in 1924 in Wichita, Kansas, Thomas served three years during World War II in the United States Army Air Force. In 1951, he received his bachelor's degree from UCSB and in 1952 he earned his master of fine arts degree from the California College of Arts and Crafts. In the early 1960s, Thomas worked in Paris, France, and in 1972 and 1973 he worked in Florence, Italy.

The recipient of numerous awards and honors, Thomas is listed in Who's Who in America, Who's Who in American Art and The Directory of Distinguished Americans. At the time of his death, Thomas held the honor of being a step-five professor, reflecting excellence in his work and accomplishment in his field.

President Discusses Stock Market Crash at News Conference

Terence Hunt
AP Correspondent

WASHINGTON — President Ronald Reagan said Thursday night there may be other volatile days ahead for the battered stock market, but, "there are no indicators of recession or hard times at all."

Reagan said in a nationally televised news conference that he would meet personally with congressional leaders to seek agreement on a plan to reduce the federal deficit. "I'm putting everything on the table with the exception of Social Security," said the president, who has vowed repeatedly in the past to veto any tax increases.

"I call on the leaders of Congress to do the same," he said.

It was Reagan's first formal White House news conference in seven months, and he began with a quip. "Seems like only yesterday," he said to laughter from reporters.

Reagan began with a progress report on first lady Nancy Reagan, who underwent breast cancer surgery last Saturday.

"It sure is good news to have Nancy back home and she's doing just fine," he said.

The news conference came at a particularly difficult time in Reagan's administration.

In addition to his wife's cancer, the president has had to grapple with economic difficulty and a tense situation in the Persian Gulf in recent days, and is anxiously awaiting word from Secretary of State George Shultz on possible progress toward an arms control treaty with the Soviet Union.

Reagan said he believes Soviet General Secretary Mikhail Gorbachev will visit the United States this year to sign a ground-breaking arms reduction treaty, but has no firm word that the meeting will take place.

He also defended his policy in the Persian Gulf, where the U.S. Navy ships this week destroyed Iranian offshore oil platforms being used as launching areas for military action, and issued a veiled warning to Iran's leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

"If he's going to go on with provocative acts against us, then he's running a great risk. Because we are going to respond," Reagan said. "We are not going to just sit there."

But, the president also said, "We are not there to start a war. We are there to protect neutral nations' shipping in international water."

Most of the questions dealt with the economy and Reagan was generally upbeat.

"While there were a couple of days of gains after a couple of days of losses, we shouldn't assume that the stock market's excess volatility is over," he said.

He said the markets should remain open, but applauded the decision by the New York Stock Exchange to shorten trading hours for the next three days to permit overworked brokers to catch up on paperwork.

Reagan also announced he was appointing a commission under the direction of former Sen. Nicholas Brady, R-N.J., to examine stock market procedures.

Iranian Silkworm Missile Hits Kuwaiti Offshore Oil Terminal

KUWAIT — An Iranian Silkworm missile hit Kuwait's offshore supertanker oil terminal Thursday, setting it afire and wounding several people, officials reported. None of the U.S.-flagged tankers the Navy protects were in the area.

It was the third Iranian missile attack in a week on the sheikdom nestled between Iraq and Saudi Arabia at the head of the Persian Gulf. Shipping and diplomatic sources said casualties were low because no ships were loading at the Sea Island terminal nine miles offshore and fewer than the usual 20 men were on duty.

London insurers raised their Persian Gulf rates 50 percent later Thursday to 0.75 percent of the value of a ship's cargo, double the rate before the latest round of attacks on shipping by both sides began in September. Rates have risen steadily since the Iran-Iraq war started in September 1970.

Brodsky, Russian-American Poet Wins Nobel Prize in Literature

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Poet Joseph Brodsky, who calls his Russian heritage and the freedom he found in America "the best possible combination," won the Nobel Prize in literature Thursday.

Brodsky was exiled from the Soviet Union as a "parasite" in 1972 and is now a U.S. citizen. He was cited by the Swedish Academy for creating poems "imbued with clarity of thought and poetic intensity."

At 47, Brodsky is one of the youngest writers to win the literature prize, the world's most prestigious. He lives in New York's Greenwich Village and has taught at several American colleges and universities.

An academy spokesman indicated Brodsky had been considered for the world's most prestigious literature prize for several years. The award, this year worth about $340,000, was approved in a formal vote by 16 attending members of the 18-member Academy moments before the announcement at the ornate Stock Market building.

Norwegian Police Find European and Possibly American Violations

WASHINGTON — Norwegian police found European companies, and possibly American ones, violated export control agreements by selling the Soviet Union computerized milling equipment used to make silent submarines, according to a report issued Thursday.

Machine tool companies in France, West Germany, Italy and Britain sold computerized technology to the Soviet Union and China for 10 years, said the report on a seven-month investigation into the involvement of Norway's Kongsberg Vapenfabrikk in the sales.

From 1974 to 1984, a subsidiary of the state-owned Kongsberg company sold the Soviets 140 machine tool controllers, the computerized device which controls propellers in milling equipment.

Blazing Saddles: Parisian Cabs Install High-Volt Electric Chairs

PARIS — Parisian taxi drivers, already armed against hostile clients with a measure of arrogance, savvy and an occasional dog, may soon be equipping their cabs with hot seats. With the push of a discreetly placed pedal, the driver can send the electricity coursing for one minute through the back seat, stunning the passenger with a jolt to the back of the neck. As a safety measure, the driver must push two other buttons before pressing the pedal.

Five prototype cabs with the seats already are cruising the city, and a cabbies' union leader hopes it will be available to all drivers who want it by the end of the year.

Man Completes 'Paddle Against Drugs' in Frigid Potomac River

WASHINGTON — Californian Larry Capune rolled off his paddle board and emerged Thursday from the frigid Potomac River on completion of a 164-day, 4,090 mile journey from Chicago, complaining about the lack of news media attention to his "paddle against drugs."

"Where's the responsibility of the media to show the positive things?" the 45-year-old former lifeguard turned motivational speaker to students asked as he dawdled in the water awaiting the promised arrival of television cameras that never showed.

"It's fairly discouraging, isn't it, to go for 164 days ... and at the finish, you get less press than you got part way through," he said. "This is a prime example to kids: Why do something positive if nobody pays attention?"

Stock Market Remains Unstable as Dow Jones Average Drops

NEW YORK — Stocks tumbled in frantic trading Thursday, dousing hopes of quick recovery from the market's historic crash and raising fears of more violent financial spasms despite President Reagan's fresh assurances that the economy remains strong.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell 77.42 points to 1,950.43 at closing. Losing stocks swamped gainers by a 5-to-1 margin on the New York exchange. Volume exceeded 392 million shares in the fourth busiest trading day ever.

In the midst of the worst crisis on Wall Street since the Crash of 1929, Reagan said Thursday night that there may be volatile days ahead, but "there are no indicators out there of recession or hard times at all."

OSHA Imposes $5 Million Fine for Building Collapse Killing 28

WASHINGTON — The Labor Department assessed a record $5.11 million in fines Thursday against contractors for a half-built Bridgeport, Conn., apartment building that collapsed and killed 28 workers in April. A small bracket that bent under heavy pressure triggered the disaster, investigators said.

"We found a serious disregard for basic, fundamental engineering practices," said Assistant Labor Secretary John A. Pendergrass, chief of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

OSHA, which waited for the technical report from the standard bureau before issuing fines, cited Texstar Construction Corp. of San Antonio, Texas, with 238 instances of alleged willful violations for using lifting brackets that did not meet federal standards. The bureau requires that they be able to hold two and a half times the anticipated load.

The company was fined $2.52 million.

'It Looked Like Oyster Stew on the Highway' Says Police Officer

NEW ORLEANS — About 2,000 crabs fell onto an interstate highway when the bottom fell out of a refrigerator truck bringing them to market, officials said.

"It looked like oyster stew on the highway," police officer Joe DeJoie said Thursday.

It took a bulldozer several hours to scoop the 1,700 to 2,100 crabs that fell onto Interstate 10 in eastern New Orleans late Wednesday.

Most of the crabs were run over by trucks and cars behind Ricky DeHart, the driver, who got his truck off the road and directed traffic around the pile of shellfish with a flashlight until officers arrived.

DeHart, 28, deserved credit for "sticking around and keeping it from being worse," said officer Bill Suhre.

Russian Immigrants Conspire with FBI Agent, Pleading Guilty

SAN FRANCISCO — The guilty plea of a Russian immigrant to a charge of conspiring with FBI agent Richard Miller to pass military secrets to the Soviet Union was upheld Thursday by a federal appeals court.

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled 3-0 that Nikolay Ogorodnikov, 54, of Los Angeles had made a voluntary and factually based admission of guilt in a mid-trial plea-bargain.

Ogorodnikov was sentenced to eight years in prison, and his wife, Svetlana Ogorodnikova, who also pleaded guilty after 10 weeks of their joint trial, was given 18 years for conspiracy to commit espionage with Miller.

Miller, the first FBI agent ever charged with espionage, was convicted of passing classified documents to the Soviet Union in exchange for promises of $65,000 in cash and gold. He was sentenced to life in prison and is appealing his conviction.

Ogorodnikov's lawyer, Terry Andur, said he was not surprised by Thursday's ruling in light of the appeals court's decision to not hold oral arguments in the case. "The writing was pretty much on the wall," he said.

Congress Summons Lab Official Who Alleged Star Wars Untruths

LOS ANGELES — A former "Star Wars" researcher will meet Friday with congressional leaders to discuss his claim that physicist Edward Teller misled top policy makers about prospects for developing an X-ray laser weapon.

Roy D. Woodruff, who resigned in 1985 as head of X-ray laser research at Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory, said Thursday he was summoned to the meeting by staffers for Rep. George Brown, D-Calif.

Brown said Wednesday that other congressmen in attendance will include Rep. Les Aspin, chairman of the House Armed Services Committee.

"We're going to talk about the representation of the X-ray laser and the implications of that representation to the formation of national policy," Woodruff said during a telephone interview from Los Alamos National Laboratory, N.M., where he was attending a conference.

Teller, known for helping develop the hydrogen bomb, didn't return phone calls to his office on Thursday. His secretary referred reporters to the lab's public information officers. But spokeswoman Bonnie Jean Barringer said she had no comment on the matter.

Religious Group Counsels Gays Who No Longer Want Lifestyle

FRESNO — A woman upset because a close relative is homosexual and a conservative church whose pastor once viewed homosexuals as untouchables have organized counseling groups for people who want to leave the gay lifestyle.

About 100 homosexuals have become involved with Exile Ministries founded by Wilma Joseph who convinced her pastor, the Rev. Bill Thornton, that his Grantland Avenue Baptist Church should coordinate the effort.

Thornton, 59, said he was reluctant because he considered homosexuals "those untouchable people of society. I didn't even want to know one." But Thornton's attitude changed after he organized a support group for parents and spouses of homosexuals and began working with acquired immune deficiency syndrome patients.

Israeli Lecturer Talks of Middle East

Former Ambassador Outlines His Concepts for Israeli/Arab Peace

By Randolph Klein
Reporter

Israeli statesman Abba Eban will discuss the current Middle East situation in a lecture entitled "Prospects for Peace in the Middle East," Sunday night in Campbell Hall.

During his career, Eban has held several posts in the Israeli government, including minister of education and culture, deputy prime minister and minister of foreign affairs. He has also served as Israel's ambassador to both the United States and the United Nations. Currently, Eban is chair of the Israeli Knesset's, or parliament's, Foreign Affairs and Defense Committee.

"Abba Eban is one of the senior and ... wiser diplomatic voices from the Middle East," political science department Chair Cedric Robinson said. "(He is) one of those people who understands that it's possible to look into every area to bring about a solution."

In addition to diplomatic endeavors, Eban has published several works, ranging from an autobiography to books and articles on diplomacy to studies of Israel and Judaism. One of Eban's books, Heritage: Civilization and the Jews, was turned into a Public Broadcasting Service mini-series that he narrated himself.

Born in Capetown, South Africa, Eban attended both Cambridge University and New York University. By developing a world-renowned reputation for his command of the English language, Eban is one of the world's best-known spokespeople on Israeli affairs, according to a UCSB Arts & Lectures press release.

Israeli statesman Abba Eban

His lecture, scheduled to begin at 8 p.m., is being co-sponsored by UCSB Arts & Lectures, Hillel, the Global Peace and Security Program, and UCSB's history, political science and religious studies departments.

Hillel, a Jewish campus religious organization, chose to co-sponsor Eban's lecture because he is considered "one of the ... top two or three most important Jews in the world," according to Rabbi Stephen Cohen. "(Eban is) probably the most important spokesman serving to bridge the Jewish community in Israel with the Jewish community in the diaspora (the world outside Israel)."

Tickets for the lecture may be purchased at the UCSB Arts & Lectures Ticket Office — $8 for general, $6 for students.

Funding Shortfall Deemed Cause of Cancellation of InfoTrak Database

By Sean Ryan
Reporter

In place of the tan-and-red InfoTrak database reference service that used to be on the second floor of the UCSB main library, there is now only a blue-and-white sign that reads: "Because of funding constraints, the subscription to InfoTrak could not be renewed."

Available to libraries, InfoTrak is an electronic database that contains information about articles from various journals and periodicals, cross-referenced by both name and subject, Assistant University Librarian Olga S. Ignon explained. Run at the UCSB Library for nearly a year, the database was removed near the end of summer quarter, Ignon said.

"Stopping InfoTrak was part of our imposed, mandated retrenchment. This will be the third year in a row that the acquisition budget hasn't had a penny's increase," Ignon said, noting that the cost of journals has "skyrocketed," which led to the UCSB Library's cancellation of at least 1,200 journal subscriptions.

"We didn't cancel InfoTrak capriciously or with any great joy, but it was very expensive. The software ... was $10,000 a year," Ignon explained. And, the computer terminal had to be used in conjunction with the same company that provided InfoTrak, which meant an additional $5,000 expense each year, she added. Other costs, including printer paper, also boosted the expense of the overall package by an extra $1,000, Ignon said.

The ill-fated InfoTrak was plagued by more than just monetary problems, however, Ignon continued. "The database is focused rather narrowly — mostly (on) journals and newsletters that have to do with business, economics and finance. We weren't getting enough coverage of enough disciplines," Ignon said. "We weren't getting enough bang for our buck."

(See COMPUTER, p.4)

be little that would divert us," he said.

However, he said "three categories" involving the requirement "have not been resolved."

The "most basic" question — the definition of "ethnicity" — has not yet been determined, Watts said. "We have to come to some understanding of what is ethnicity. There is not general agreement on that point."

The question of how to implement ethnic studies also remains unresolved, Watts continued. One topic of debate is whether to increase the number of course units required by the general education stipulations by adding a new general education course. The majority of the task force is opposed to increasing the total number of units, Watts said.

In addition, the task force has not yet agreed whether general courses about ethnicity developed specifically for the new general education requirement, or specific courses already offered should make up ethnic studies, Watts said.

The target date for completing work on an ethnic studies requirement is Dec. 3, Watts said.

In other business, Nash criticized the administration for failing to consult the Academic Senate on two separate matters. The development of a "Racial Harassment Policy," which was recently drafted by a minority affairs committee for Uehling, circumvented input from the faculty, Nash said.

"I need to bring up a complication that has developed on the administration side — and where the complication ... is related to failure to follow UC rules," Nash said.

Citing the university-wide Faculty Code of Conduct, Nash said the faculty has a

California Could Require 800 More Schools by Nineties

By Thome Gray
McClatchy News Service

SACRAMENTO — California needs 800 new schools by 1993 and perhaps another university campus to handle what state schools chief Bill Honig called "the echo of the baby boom."

Honig and others told a legislative committee that the state needs $6.5 billion in new school construction, deferred maintenance, modernization and reconstruction. But, the state has only approved $800 million to do the job and another $800 million bond proposal issue has stalled in the legislature.

In his presentation to the Joint Legislative Budget Committee, Honig avoided any criticism of Gov. George Deukmejian as he outlined what he termed "startling" news about the state's future school construction needs.

Honig and the governor ended a seven-month feud over school operating finances last month, pledging to tone down their rhetoric and try to work together.

In remarks to reporters after his testimony, Honig made it clear he continues to seek a change in the state's constitutional spending cap so revenue the state already collects need not be returned to taxpayers.

A holiday season rebate that Deukmejian sought will distribute $1.1 billion to taxpayers from revenue that exceeded the spending ceiling in fiscal year 1986-87.

"This rebate idea of giving back $1 billion when you have this huge construction need for schools or roads or other social investments, to me that was a mistake," Honig said. "That money could have been used to make investments for the future."

Other witnesses told the committee similar stories of revenue shortfalls reflecting a decade of tax cutting and deferred expenditures following voter approval of Proposition 13 in 1978 and the state spending cap a year later.

Witnesses from the state Chamber of Commerce and trucking industry outlined employee frustrations and fears of productivity losses because of traffic gridlock and the lack of public facilities and services.

The state's university and community colleges need an estimated $7.7 billion for construction and maintenance over the next 12 years, compared with $1.7 billion in actual expenditures for the preceding 12 years, said William Pickens, executive director of the California Post-secondary Education Commission.

Agreeing, Assemblyman Robert Campbell, D-Richmond, said the University of California needs space for an additional 30,000 students right now, the equivalent of a new campus.

As a result, top students are being turned away, constituents are complaining to their legislators and "stupid discussions" flare up over matters, such as minority admissions, that should not be issues, he said.

By 1994, the state will need $29 billion to cover maintenance that has been deferred and another $49 billion for new construction to handle increased population, said Sen. William Campbell, R-Hacienda Heights, committee chairs.

"What will California look like if we continue to respond with Band-Aids?" Campbell asked. "Do we burden future generations with bond payments to pay for the projects, or do we raise current revenues, thereby running up against the spending limit?"

Campbell said the state has saved its taxpayers money in recent years, but in the meantime it has "become aged," clogged with traffic jams, burdened with more school children, prisoners and workers than it can handle.

Yet another difficulty with the system was the fact that of the 9,000 or so periodicals the database could reference, only about half that number were actually on hand in the UCSB Library, Ignon said. Thus, many students were frustrated by having their hopes raised when they found references, but no materials to go with them, she explained.

Student reaction to InfoTrak's removal has been mixed and some are even unaware that the database ever existed.

"I have a thesis due in the next two quarters, for which I have to compile data and a bibliography. So, the absence of the InfoTrak will block an easy source of information," junior John Doloszycki said.

Library officials are considering the use of another database system, WILSONDISC, which is currently utilized at UC-San Diego, Ignon said. It will have the ability to access information in the arts, humanities and social sciences at about half the cost of InfoTrak, Ignon said, emphasizing that its purchase is still under study at this time.

Discussing various possible replacement systems for InfoTrak, Ignon said, "Much of it is very, very new.... The whole thing (the database industry) is very volatile, very rapid-changing, which means we don't want to jump in and make a commitment of $15,000 dollars for one subscription and then it turns out not to be what it's touted to be."

What you Get!

Besides the free computer account on Unix, there will be seminars available demonstrating how to prepare, format and print text, and how to send and receive mail. Unix accounts have a menu system which makes using Unix easy for the beginner. Graduate students will receive a manual describing how to set up their thesis per library specifications.

How to Get It!

To sign up for an account and to register for a class, you need only bring your reg card to Girvetz 2325 (Computer Center accounts office). For further information on this program, see a Unix consultant in Phelps 1530, Monday through Friday, 1:00 to 3:00 p.m.

A.S. Debates Fate of Old Computer

By Christopher Wyland

Who will be the recipient of an old word processing computer that has been replaced by a newer machine at the Associated Students office was the topic of heated debate at Wednesday night's A.S. Legislative Council meeting.

Upon learning of the A.S. office's purchase of an Apple Macintosh computer to replace the organization's former computer, a DeskMate, several A.S. committees expressed interest in the office's plans for the old computer.

At Wednesday's meeting, in which Leg Council approved the purchase of the Macintosh, A.S. Executive Director Tamara Scott suggested that the DeskMate go to KCSB.

In response, A.S. President Curtis Robinson proposed that the DeskMate be given to the Student Lobby Annex and joined A.S. External Vice-President Carla Jimenez in introducing a bill seeking to transfer the DeskMate there.

KCSB General Manager Malcolm Gault-Williams spoke of the campus radio station's need for the DeskMate. KCSB has had problems in having its meeting minutes and station letters typed, among other secretarial problems due to inadequate equipment, Gault-Williams explained. "KCSB is dealing with really outdated equipment," he remarked.

Student Lobby Annex Director Jaime Acton stressed the lobby's need for the computer and asked the council to send it there, as per the bill. "Lobby is restricted to manual typewriters and one telephone to service more than 15 groups," Acton explained.

The computer's final destination will be resolved by an ad hoc committee and presented at next week's Leg Council meeting.

In other business, council discussed its soon-to-begin involvement with plans for UCSB's future, as proposed by the Campus Planning Committee, a group that determines the future physical and academic outlook of UCSB, according to CPC spokeswoman Kim Alexander. The CPC has published a draft report of its future plans for the university and would like A.S. to involve itself with the CPC's proposed plans, Alexander reported to Leg Council. The council was also presented with an executive summary of the CPC report and with the location of where the public can view the report — the reserved book room at the campus library.

Also at the meeting, the appointments of Jeff Levine to the UCen Governance Board, Bruce Fangmeier to the Student Conduct Committee, and Nels Henderson and Jaime Acton to the Collective Bargaining Committee were approved.

professional right to assist in the "formulation of rules, and procedures for the discipline of students." He also questioned the constitutionality of the racial harassment policy itself.

Nash feels "dismay occasioned by my discovery that a draft of the student policy part of the matter (the harassment policy) has gotten all the way to regent's counsel, who thought it was probably constitutionally unviable, without ever a word to the senate, without any consultation with the senate. Indeed, it was sent twice up to University Hall without such prior consultation."

The administration's lack of knowledge about the university's consultation requirement was surprising, Nash said. "I am asking the systemwide Academic Council to examine the matter as a whole. We shall see what can be worked out," he said.

Nash also criticized the appointment of Central Intelligence Agency agent George A. Chritton Jr. as a UCSB lecturer this quarter.

The agent is intended to "demonstrate the quality of CIA people and ... commitment to providing U.S. leaders with the very best intelligence we can," according to a letter to former political science department Chair Dean Mann from Stanley Moskowitz, chair of the CIA Training Selection Board.

"The program also serves to strengthen our professional ties to a fertile and indispensable source of ideas and technical expertise and to enhance (the) CIA's recruiting efforts by providing an opportunity for experienced officers to serve as role models, to counsel interested students on career opportunities with (the) CIA, and to respond to concerns students may have about the agency and the intelligence profession," the letter stated.

The Academic Senate was not consulted on the appointment of Chritton, but Senate Bylaw 188 gives the senate the right to vote on the issue, Nash said. "No department shall be organized in a way that would deny any of its faculty who are voting members of the Academic Senate ... the right to vote on substantial departmental questions," the bylaw states.

The campus department held a vote on the subject following the appointment, Nash said, and the "resolution (concerning the appointment) lay overwhelmingly in the negative."

IMAGINE KNOWING THAT TODAY IS THE BEST DAY YOU'LL EVER HAVE.

If you had a progressive neuromuscular disease, every tomorrow would bring you greater weakness and more muscle waste. And the best day you could hope for would be the one you were having right now.

That's because most neuromuscular diseases progress day by day, gradually wasting a patient's muscles away. This muscle degeneration can't be halted. And, it can never be reversed.

At the Muscular Dystrophy Association, we're striving to put an end to twelve forms of muscular dystrophy, and twenty-eight other neuromuscular diseases. Because we believe there are no incurable diseases—just diseases for which cures haven't yet been found. And because it's the only way that tens of thousands of people with neuromuscular disease can look forward to a better tomorrow.

IT HAS LANDED.

Let Us Just Give Peace A Chance...

Walking for Peace

Editorial

Peace. The word may create images of modern-day hippies, born too late to catch the action of the 60s; the sort of crowd riding a trendy bandwagon to the next Grateful Dead show or to whatever protest is hip. But there are times when "peace" needs to inspire thoughts of action and demonstration. This Saturday's "Peacewalk '87" is such an occasion.

Many view world peace as nothing more than over-optimistic idealism. Peace is an ideal but it should not be dismissed as an unrealistic goal. Idealism is far more constructive than cynicism will ever be.

In our quiet, isolated paradise of Santa Barbara, it is easy to ignore the conflicts that other peoples of other nations are struggling with. We must not forget that we are living in a world filled with turmoil. Wars are being waged on four of the seven continents, nations around the globe are struggling with internal conflicts and we are all living under the threat of nuclear destruction.

But the need for peace is also at home. Racial discrimination is tearing apart society, trillions of dollars are spent on weapons manufacturing and the violence of rape and child abuse are destroying our friends and families. A country does not need to be "at war" to need peace.

The Santa Barbara Peace Resource Center, co-sponsors of the event, hope to accomplish several things with "Peacewalk '87." The theme of the occasion is "For Our Children, Our Family, Our Home." The idea is to get people to realize that the children are the future, and as adults, we are responsible for that future. We need to be reminded that family is more than immediate relatives, it is all of humanity. Our home is our planet and we must live in balance with nature.

The goals of Peacewalk will not be immediately achieved. Saturday's event most likely will not bring a sudden end to the arms race or the Gulf war but it will show how much the people in this community support the peace movement. Peacewalk sponsors hope to help more people understand the importance of peace, both as an attitude as well as something to continually strive for in our world. To do this, there must be a change in people's attitudes towards peace. Peacewalk is an attempt to increase awareness and affect attitudes so that together we can work to make peace a reality for our world.

We all share this one world, and each one of us is responsible to ensure its survival. The UCSB population needs to become active in the peace movement in our community. This decade has given students the reputation of being a product of the "me" generation. If we want true success we must realize that it does not come with buying a Mercedes and a condo. True success comes when we are able to give to our society and humanity. In that way everyone profits.

The Peacewalk will be held Saturday at 10 a.m. in Santa Barbara's Alameda Park.

The last few days have been a real whirlwind for America. The crash of the stock market, greater even than the famous crash in 1929, has set Americans on the edge of their seats. The whole world has been affected by the timely crash on Wall Street as well as foreign exchange markets. But meanwhile, other situations continue functioning normally. For instance, our situation in the Persian Gulf, particularly with Iran, is escalating.

Last week Iran attacked a U.S. registered Kuwaiti tanker. As a result of the attack, 17 crew members were injured and the American captain was blinded. In what Washington called a "retaliation," American naval forces shelled Iranian offshore oil platforms. Four Navy destroyers fired 1,000 shells at two sections of the platform and later, demolition teams finalized the destruction. What was the major difference between the Iranian offensive and the United States' offensive? The men on board the oil platforms were notified of the attack and given 20 to 30 minutes to evacuate. Unfortunately, the captain of the Sea Isle City, the U.S. registered Kuwaiti ship attacked, had no warning to get his crew off the doomed ship.

Mid-Life Id in the Info

Craig Weinberg

When some psychologists identified what the referred to as an identity crisis, they interpreted it as teenage rite of passage, a period of confusion before settling into adulthood. With the 70's, came the idea of the mid-life crisis; a period where people upon reaching maturity became frustrated with their identities and their lives.

I believe that these are foreshadowings, microcosmic manifestations of the final blow to the mass psyche. That's right, I'm talking about the Global Mid-life Identity Crisis. I'm convinced that the American youth of the 1950's and the 60's were only the first, most sensitive creatures to feel the force of this multi-dimensional shockwave. The fads of the last 30 years from hula-hoops and pet rocks to LSD and Wall Street show that the character and destiny of the United States as well as the rest of the world is no more stable than even the flakiest of teenagers.

The present quirk of mass mentality, the Neocynonense business-as-usual mindset is the most hilarious mutation since the polyester kings of our decadent disco past. The 80s have dredged up some of the most absurd notions from the past decades (even centuries) and repackaged them as legitimate concepts. It has actually become fashionable to study business, econ, get married and have kids; we have emerged from the open experimentation of the 60s and 70s as a bunch of plastic, superstitious puritans who are interested in turning the clock back if we can't stop it altogether.

It would be truly frightening if we really could forget the 60s and 70s. It would be scary if it weren't so ridiculous. The idea of the frenzied chaos of the 20th century ending with Bon Jovi and frozen yogurt stands is as appropriate as seeing Adolf Hitler guest star on Miami Vice.

There is no way that the century that brought us two world wars, the atomic bomb, a man on the moon, the Twilight Zone and Disneyland is going to end without Grand Finale. This century is like an intensely strange movie punctuated before the conclusion by a slick obnoxious commercial message. The current modes of behavior are just more examples of a confused planet struggling with its identity.

This decade represents a period of incubation before the main event. While the mainstream public wallows

Not Invulnerable

After the platform's decision, Iranian officials said the damage at $500 million. Furthermore, the Iranian Parliament proclaimed, "In the coming days and months, we will carry out our policy." A stern warning to the United States no doubt. Yet Iran is making threats and then not following through with them. The matter is Iran doesn't have the capabilities to wage war on the United States. Obviously, Iran has a military superiority over the United States. Plus, Iran is currently engaged in the bitter Iran-Iraq war, using both countries' resources to its advantage.

President Reagan thinks it's time to go to war with Iran. They're not stupid." Statements as arrogant as this have no effect on international relations. We know that Iran simply can't face the United States in a conventional war, but that doesn't mean that Iran can't do serious damage to America.

We must consider the methods used in the past to attack Iran. Gulf attacks have been made by mines placed in the open sea, which are hard to trace. Speed boat attacks have also occurred, mainly against merchant ships. If Iran wanted to attack the United States, it would use techniques like mines, something hard to trace. There is only one answer: Terrorism. Surely many people sympathetic to Iran are currently living here in the U.S., not to mention the hundreds of Iranians that could easily gain entrance. When Iran says it is going to attack the United States, it means attacking innocent citizens, not military personnel. How could the United States "retaliate" an anonymously placed bomb in a crowded movie theater, a full hotel, a busy highrise, or a packed elementary school? Tracing the culprits in acts such as these would be next to impossible. Iran would need to merely deny any and all knowledge of such acts. Where would that leave us? If we were to "retaliate," it might appear as if we were making an unprovoked attack on Iran.

This is obviously not a situation the United States wants to place itself in. By treating Iran with contempt we are jeopardizing the lives of innocent Americans. Any country can do us damage. We may be militarily superior, but even superior countries can be hurt. It's time we take a look at exactly what we're getting ourselves into in the Persian Gulf and start taking Iran a little more seriously.

Identity Crisis Formation Age

In a chaotic soap opera of paranoia and greed, the 21st century mutants are becoming a covert nation of hermits. Each individual is involved in a more or less private search for perfection in their lives.

The so-called 'New Age' is composed of a wide variety of authentic visionaries and exploitive charlatans, and both are very aware that they are what's new in the world. There could be no better place to start than right here in the home of the pioneers, where many people are ready to head out to the ultimate frontiers of outer and inner space. Only time will weed out the profits from the prophets, the true renaissance of the Information Age will not be based on faith but on knowledge.

This century is like an intensely strange movie punctuated before the conclusion with a slick obnoxious commercial message.

Now that I'm in college, I am caught right in the middle of everything. I have a few theories about what I am, where I am, and what I am doing. I might be an idealistic youth, spoiled by suburban luxury, about to be disillusioned in the cold hard world of paperwork, bosses and freeway traffic. I might be the only real person in a world full of lifelike zombies who torment me as part of some kind of extra-terrestrial experiment in entertainment. I could be merely a tiny fragment of the population of a race about to be extinguished by an act of supreme idiocy. I could be a pre-natal sinner being punished in Hell. I might be a pawn in some kind of divine battle for souls. I may be an infinitely powerful being posing as a mortal for cheap thrills. I may be a psychic pioneer of a cosmic renaissance that will take us to the end of time. Or I am a self-deluded maniac who is too lazy to get a real job.

I am definitely not a Yuppie or a puritan dinosaur or a suit-and-tie man for some fucking hideous corporation. I am not a moronic socialite climbing the Greek ladders of intrigue and beer, and I am certainly not someone who doesn't know the difference between boredom and a worthwhile learning experience (as one person from Corpus Christi, Texas suggested). I guess the only thing that I can be sure I am is an undeclared junior at UCSB.

The Reader's Voice

Justification

Editor, Daily Nexus:

In a recent letter, Todd Furman asks how members of the Objectivist Club justify their claim to know that the philosophy of Ayn Rand is correct. Mr. Furman then gives a popular skeptical argument that, if accepted, invalidates not only the Objectivist's claim to philosophic knowledge, but anyone's claim to any knowledge. A complete refutation of skepticism would require a full exposition of Ayn Rand's theory of knowledge, and for that we refer the reader to her book entitled Introduction to Objectivist Epistemology. We shall confine ourselves to a couple of key points.

The philosophy of Objectivism holds that knowledge, including philosophic knowledge, is gained primarily by a process of inductive reasoning. However, Mr. Furman asserts without argument that "sound inductive inferences only lead to probably true claims," i.e., one can never be certain in regard to conclusions reached by induction. To understand why Ayn Rand rejected this view, let us consider a few examples of inductive inferences:

1. The sun will rise in the East and set in the West tomorrow;
2. An object dropped from the top of Storke Tower will fall to the ground;
3. There will be a Halloween party in Isla Vista this year.

There are literally thousands of such conclusions reached by a process of inductive reasoning which all of us rightfully regard as absolutely certain.

What basis does the skeptic have to doubt facts such as these? To quote a leading Objectivist philosopher: "Doubting without a basis is the equivalent of — is indeed a form of — asserting without a basis. Both procedures, being arbitrary, are disqualified by the very nature of human cognition. In reason, certainty must precede doubt, just as a grasp of truth must precede the detection of error. To establish a claim to knowledge, what one must do is to prove an idea positively, on the basis of the full context of evidence available; i.e., a man must prove that he is right. It is not incumbent on anyone — nor is it possible — to prove that he is not wrong, when no evidence of error has been offered."

Expected Responses

Editor, Daily Nexus:

This letter is in reply to Sabrina Brademan's article entitled Vile Vandalism.

Let me first start out by saying that it is unfortunate that your Mercedes hood ornament was stolen. I fully agree that it was probably a drunken, no-holds-barred gag by some over-zealous Beastie Boys fan in search of a new trinket for his/her gold chain.

However, I think it is a blatant over-reaction to wish bad feelings on this person. First of all, look what it's done to you; once you were a caring and trusting person who would trust the human race so much as to leave all your books and backpack in front of the UCen, what faith!!!

Now because of the loss of a certain small, shiny status symbol on the end of your cold, fast machine you have become vengeful, paranoid and unforgiving.

It seems to me that the person who stole your ornament has enough problems without bad karma from you. Don't get me wrong, I do sympathize with you, it must of been a long summer of working to earn $50,000 to buy a Mercedes, and equally as difficult to get those hot summer days off to sit home and wax it endlessly. Your parents must have been proud.

Sarcasm aside, what I'm trying to get through is often called the big picture. Take a look around your own home in Isla Vista and what do you see. Homeless vagrants whose last meal came out of a black label can, reports of teenage alcoholism, rape, and drug problems are just a few of the sights occurring around town.

As for wishing sadness and/or guilt on the thief; I think that's something we can all live without. What I suggest is a more friendly and communicative way of going about this. Suppose the one who stole your ornament was drunk, tell him/her that he is forgiven and no questions will be asked if the hood ornament is returned — fair enough!!

It sounds simple, but in reality it might work and something will be gained by all. You'll get your ornament and trust of the human race back, the thief will get rid of his guilt and your car will look rad again.

Well Sabrina, that's it, just my opinion on a situation that doesn't call for vengeance.

Cheers.

P.S. Will you take me for a ride?

NICK VRANKOVICH

Editor, Daily Nexus:

Vile Vandalism? How about Vile Displays of Wealth? We are very sorry someone stole your hood ornament Sabrina, of course they had no right to do that, but we think you are misreading their motives. We doubt that the thief looked at your dandy hood ornament and said, "Gee, that sure is pretty. I wish I had one to put on my wall." We think it probably went more like this: "What the hell is a 19/20 year old doing with a Mercedes?!" We are sure they knew the hood ornament was important to you. We have to wonder why it is important to you. This person was probably a little fed up with the me-me-me attitude of some of the spoiled brats of UCSB, whose concerns rarely include hunger, nuclear war, and/or political corruption.

We are glad this little incident has opened your eyes to the imperfections of the world. Maybe it will breed some discontent in you. Next time please don't take up our time with your whiny complaints of a missing hood ornament. There are many other things missing in this community which are much more important, like breakfasts for school children. We think you are the one who should "feel really bad after reading" your article.

We doubt whether the thief, if reading your editorial, is saying "boy is she uptight." We bet he/she is sitting in disbelief, not knowing whether to seek you out and strangle you, or just laugh as you tell us what you "want." DON'T YOU HAVE ENOUGH ALREADY?

More to Come

Editor, Daily Nexus:

Last week nearly 100 people crowded into a UCen room to view the videotape "To Be A Black Student At UCSB," part of the APC's program series, "Issues of Diversity: Celebrating Awareness." It was very exciting and rewarding to see such a positive response to the expressed concern of racism and insensitivity at UCSB.

The Activities Planning Center would like to publicly thank Ranford Hopkins and Jill Suttie, both EOP Counselors, for their admirable job of facilitating a meaningful and personal discussion with such a large group. We would also like to thank all of you who participated in this event for taking a step to educate yourselves and each other about some of the issues that plague our campus. Many of you demonstrated an additional commitment to this cause by volunteering to become peer educators on topics of cultural sensitivity. Your willingness is greatly appreciated and will certainly enhance future educational efforts.

For those of you who were unable to attend last week's program, we are planning a second viewing during the first few weeks of Winter Quarter as the APC Diversity Series continues. At that time we will also schedule a showing of "To Be a Chicano/Latino Student At UCSB," which is presently nearing completion. I hope that each of you will continue to promote racial awareness by taking advantage of the Diversity Series and other educational opportunities on campus. Make an additional impact by encouraging your friends to do the same.

18 Years of Waiting

Anxious Gridders Attempt Overdue Winning Season

By Patrick Whalen
Sports Editor

UCSB Head Football Coach Mike Warren will have his head turned towards the sky come Saturday, as he waits for the Great Gaucho In The Sky to drop UCSB's first winning season in 18 years in his lap.

That's the prize for Warren and the Gauchos, when they kickoff the seventh game of this season against the Pomona-Pitzer Sagehens in a 1:30 p.m. battle in Pomona.

"For us to win on Saturday would (make 1987) the first winning season we have had at UCSB in 18 years," Warren said. "And that's a very big deal with us. That was a number-one goal with us as we went into this season."

1987 has turned into a big year for the 5-1 Gauchos, a team that has found ways to defeat highly-touted schools despite losing its starting quarterback and others to injury. A win this weekend would make the season a startling success for the football program, which returned to the intercollegiate level only last year after a 15-year layoff.

The Gauchos will go once again with a duo of quarterbacks, a strategy that worked well in last week's 35-12 trouncing of La Verne. Freshman Mike Curtius will start the contest, and junior transfer Steve Armstrong will follow in the second quarter. The two combined for 300 yards through the air against La Verne.

In last year's game against the Sagehens, starting quarterback Paul Wright (now injured) threw for a school record (See POMONA, p.10)

Men's Team Will Host Home Run, Women Hit Road

By Dan Goldberg
Sports Staff Writer

All year long, the men's and women's cross-country teams have been looking forward to the year-end PCAA meet. Now the time is almost here, and Saturday's dual meet around the UCSB lagoon against the Westmont Warriors means the home stretch, the final test, a good barometer for the runners, and a host of other cliches.

After an alumni meet in the morning, the Westmont and UCSB women will square off, followed by the men.

Women's coach Jim Triplett says the team will run at full strength. "This is the final prep. There are still a few spots. It's pretty important to us."

The top-five Gauchos have been decided upon but when asked, Triplett said he would "rather not comment right now."

When asked if the top-three could be Annie Holte, Christene Meis, and Wendy Peterson, Triplett responded, "I'd have to say that's a pretty good guess." However, there are eight runners competing for PCAA spots and with Christene Meis still uncertain because of her injury (she'll suit up and try this weekend), the final decision will wait until Monday morning.

Triplett is confident and feels his team will stretch its win (See WESTMONT, p.10)

Weekend Schedule Brings Gaels, USF Before Kickers

The women's soccer team (second in the Western Region behind Cal-Berkeley) will take on third-ranked St. Mary's of Moraga today in Harder Stadium. Kickoff is at 4:30 p.m.

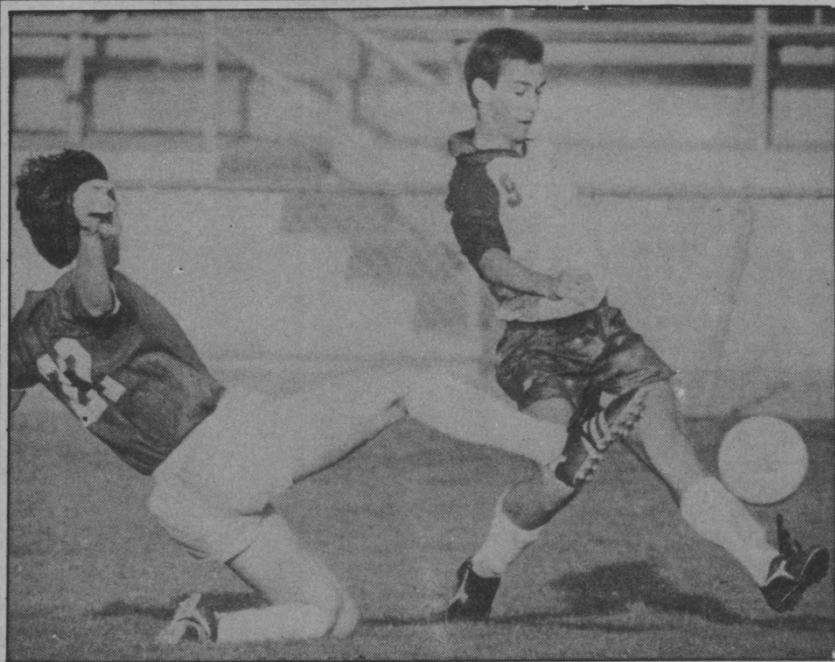

Although every game is a must win, this match may be a tad more critical in that both teams are vying for a playoff spot. Last year the top three teams on the west coast went to the playoffs, including Santa Barbara, and Coach Tad Bobak's squad is looking to get back.

The Gauchos (12-3-1) have scored 56 goals this season for an average of 3½ per game. Freshman midfielder Laurie Klein tallied the 50th against Davis. Goalkeeper Denise San Vicente has recorded five shutouts on the year and has a 1.25 goals-against average.

On Saturday the Gauchos will host the USF Dons, a team with only three years of intercollegiate experience. Game time is 1 p.m.

Bobak feels that UCSB can beat any team that crosses their path if they put their minds and their hearts to it. "We have to concentrate to elevate our physical game, our speed and our skills," he said. This combined with an intense wanting to win, should prove to be a victorious combination for the Gauchos.

Booters Return on Home Turf to Play Cal State L.A.

By Geoff Stelling
Sports Reporter

Not everyone on campus is praying for an end to the rain. Andy Kuenzli, head coach of the UCSB men's soccer team is an example: "I believe the wet conditions certainly favor us at home. The playing field will be softer, and that suits our fast game."

Kuenzli believes the poor weather will also hinder their opponents, Cal State Los Angeles, this evening in Harder Stadium at 7 p.m.

"They are a very skillful side, with a Latin American style of play. But their game is definitely not suited to a heavy pitch," he said. In contrast, he feels that the home side is more adaptable.

"We play a much faster game, based on long passes and imaginative running. As long as the rain stops beforehand. We want people to come and see!"

The Gauchos had compiled an impressive home record before traveling to Westwood for a match with UCLA. Now they're back home and ready to improve on their misleading overall record. They'll be trying to bounce back from a 2-0 road defeat at the hands of the Bruins last Sunday, a loss that dropped their cumulative record to 8-5-2, and spoiled a recent fine run of victories.

Kuenzli thinks that the reason for the (See SOCCER, p.10)

V-ball Looks to Spike Gold in ECen Spikers to Batle 49ers, Look to Pull Ahead in Conference Standings

By Dan Vasen
Sports Staff Writer

The UCSB women's volleyball team, ranked fourth in the PCAA with a 4-3 record, will play host this weekend to a pair of strong top-twenty teams. They'll face tough league opponent Long Beach State (5-4 in league, 20-4 overall) tonight and then match up tomorrow night against the 11-4 Pepperdine Waves who are presently 6-0 in the WCVA conference.

The Gauchos defeated the CSU-LB 49ers, who are ranked fifth behind the spikers, in their last meeting on Sept. 21 in three games: 15-9, 15-13, 15-5. That loss was the 49ers' first, and Gaucho Head Coach Kathy Gregory accredited the road victory to her team's "unbelievable will to win."

The 49ers are ranked 11th nationally in the Tachikara Poll, slightly higher than the spikers' 16th ranking. Long Beach is coming off a tough five-game loss to San Diego State last week but has had more time to recuperate than the Gauchos who suffered the same fate to Cal Poly last Wednesday night.

"I don't think their last loss affects their team morale because they've had a week to forget it," Gregory said. "I think that all they're concentrating on is beating Santa Barbara because the last time we played, they lost 3-0."

The Gauchos are looking to bounce back from the loss to

Cal Poly-SLO; a win tonight would restore some of the team's confidence. "As far as our morale, we are still a little bit down because we thought we could've won that game," Gregory added. "All we are trying to do now is regroup and get ready to have a good effort against Long Beach and Pepperdine."

Tonight's match is important for the league standings with both teams needing a win. The Gauchos have either a chance to pull away from the 49ers with a win, or lose and drop even with them in the rankings.

"Had Long Beach beat San Diego, there wouldn't be pressure on them to beat us," Gregory said. "(Now) even though they know we have a good winning record, they could finish a little lower in the league than UCSB so they need to have a split with us."

"Had we won (Wednesday's) match, there wouldn't be so much pressure on this match with Long Beach, but I don't think that we can afford to have a split with them," she said. "If we have a split, it will force us to have to win at least two against San Diego, or beat San Jose State, Pacific or Hawaii."

At this point in the season, the competition for the third and fourth spots in the PCAA behind the dominant Hawaii or San Jose State teams is heightened due to the nearing of post- (See VOLLEY, p.10) boost the 8-8 Gaucho squad. With two home games slated for this weekend, today's 5 p.m. contest with Iona College and Sunday's noon match with the fifth-ranked Trojans of USC, the Gauchos will look to improve their overall record before hitting the road for next weekend's very important PCAA-PAC 10 Tournament.

Iona College, one of the top eastern water polo teams, is in the midst of a hectic California road trip. After playing two games on Thursday, against top-ranked Cal and eighth-ranked Pepperdine, the Gaels will play the Gauchos for the third time in as many years.

The Gauchos lead the series 2-0, with the most recent win coming last year when UCSB defeated Iona 16-5 at the USC pool. It will be a good game for the Gauchos who will look to polish some aspects of their game before facing the Trojans.

For water polo fans of the recent past, Sunday afternoon could be a walk down memory lane. The last time USC was on the decks of Campus Pool (October 27, 1985), they fell to the Gauchos 10-9 in front of a vocal home crowd and maybe more importantly, the victory was broadcasted into the living rooms of Southern California via Prime Ticket.

This year the Trojans are enjoying a number-five national ranking with a 13-3 overall record and 1-1 PAC-10 mark. USC's losses were to Cal 5-7, UC Irvine 3-6, and Cal State Los Angeles 7-8. That's right, Cal State L.A.

There are two things to learn from the Trojans' record. They don't have high-scoring matches, and they are definitely beatable as Cal State L.A. well knows. The Trojans are led offensively by Rossi (28 goals), Wynn (25 goals), and Berty (22 goals).

The Gauchos will look as always for leadership and offensive power from senior team captains Roberto Aguilar and Dave Phreaner. All-American Candidate Aguilar has scored 29 goals in 16 games played, good enough for sixth on the PCAA list of scoring leaders.

On the other end of the pool, sophomore goalie Mike Day is currently ranked sixth among PCAA goaltenders with 97 saves in 13 games played while allowing 91 goals. Day will look for support from a cohesive team effort both on defense and offense as the Gauchos look to improve their 4-1 home record.

POMONA

331 yards as the Gauchos coasted to a 28-15 victory. Expect the same kind of thing again ... well, for a couple of reasons.

According to Pomona-Pitzer Defensive Coordinator Mike Messer, the Sagehens are a team cracking up from injuries, and have lost four straight games following a victory in their opener.

"We're playing with a makeshift team," Messer said. "We've just run out of people to put out there."

Some of Pomona's problems: second-string quarterbacks playing cornerback, wide receivers playing both sides of the line, and a very inexperienced corps of linebackers. The Sagehens have given up an average of 34.5 points per game in their four losses.

Pomona does come in with a quarterback, Ed Irick, who has thrown for over 1,000 yards this season and two fine receivers, Dan Dayley and Greg Silva. But their ground attack is almost nil, putting in ground plays "just for grins," according to Messer.

"Defensively, this'll be as good a test as any we've had," said UCSB Defensive Coordinator Rick Candaele. "They don't look like they're at the level of St. Mary's (a Division II school the Gauchos beat 16-13), but they have as good a passing attack."

Messer had no illusions, however, of stopping UCSB — a team that has averaged 25.2 points per game in 1987. "We're just gonna try to slow 'em down, brother," he said.

Pomona will also have its chores outlined nicely against a UCSB defense that has averaged only 65.2 running yards and 143.8 passing yards per contest.

Warren believes the Gauchos are now solidly on top of their game. "What I thought was real good about our guys and the way we approached the game was that we played our game. We played better against La Verne than we had the week before (against St. Mary's), which is exactly what you want to do, particularly once you reach mid-season and go from there," he said.

"I mean, we should be peaking right now, and that's the kind of game we want to have at Pomona. Anything less than that would be below our (the coaches) expectations, and I know it would be below the expectations of our guys."

SOCCER

defeat was fatigue. "We basically were extremely physically and mentally tired," he noted. "As such, we played a sloppy game and UCLA also played a sloppy game. At least I know the reason for our defeat. But we were still upset after that one, and we felt unlucky not to force an overtime."

After a break of five days, the side will hopefully be at full strength for tonight's match and Sunday's away encounter with the Irvine Anteaters. However, lingering doubts remain concerning injured players.

"(James) Kappes is still questionable, and Sean Murray is still out," Kuenzli said. "But everybody else is healthy. Hopefully, we will be able to use this game to get our momentum back in time for the Irvine game on Sunday."

The Sunday fixture against Irvine, whom the Gauchos defeated 3-0 in Harder Stadium a week ago, is the more important game of this weekend's pair as it is UCSB's final PCAA match. The Gauchos will then play their final home game of the season on Tuesday evening against the University of San Diego.

VOLLEY

season tournaments. The Gauchos have three matches scheduled with the two teams, and those outcomes will dictate the spikers' playoff hopes.

Seniors Judy Bellomo and Yami Menendez will be leading the Gaucho attack tonight. Respectively, the two hitters are third and fourth in the PCAA in kills. Bellomo has 387 and averages 4.96 a game, Menendez has 346 and averages 4.49 a game.

Defensively the two rank even higher, Menendez is second in the PCAA in digs with 284 and averages 3.69 a game, while Bellomo ranks third with 279 and averages 3.57 a game. Menendez also ranks fifth in service aces with 38 and a .49 aces per game average.

Saturday night's non-league match against the Waves will be a good chance for the Gauchos to regain their composure while not placing their league record in jeopardy. "Pepperdine is a very good team, but our level of competition has been a little higher lately and they've been struggling to beat some teams," Gregory said.

Close examination of the spikers' record shows an interesting irregularity, the Gauchos are presently 5-2 in away games while 1-5 at home. It's more typical to see teams play better at home in front of their crowd, but Gregory explains that some of the matches they've lost would have turned out the same way on the road. "The losses were all to good teams that are ranked, UCLA and UOP and BYU, they may have been losses anywhere we played," she said. Gregory retains a positive attitude about the upcoming matches. "We're looking first to the Long Beach game and what ever will be, will be; we are realistically wanting to win two out of three this week so we'll see," she concluded.

streak against Westmont to three this Saturday. However, he does acknowledge the possibility of an upset. "There's a slight chance. Two of their girls finished before the first Gaucho last time and a third, who won the dual meet last year, is returning (from injury)."

Men's coach Pete Dolan

has announced his top-seven runners for the PCAA's with the top-four being Jeff Jacobs, Lamberto Esparza, Dave Saborer, and Pete Weinert.

The team is not worried because it isn't all on the line, like it will be "at the PCAA meet," Dolan noted.

He said the team as a whole will be up to the challenge. "They know they're better than last year. They're feeling good about themselves."

However, not everyone sees the meet as good news for the Gauchos. While the women have won their last eight meets against Westmont, the men have lost two straight.

"He's the first-year coach for UCSB and I think it's time for him to pay his dues," said Westmont Coach Russ Smelley.

Them's fightin' words.
